

Military Chaplains.

We deeply sympathize with all those ambassadors of the "Prince of Peace" who are called upon to act as war chaplains. The preparations and training for expertise in human butchery that the man of God, if he be such, and have any conscience, must feel sully out of place, amid the din of the camp and the strains of martial music, so different from the song of the angels at the birth of Him who came not to destroy men's lives, but to save them, and so very different from the soft, sweet music of the redeemed in Heaven. When he looks upon the deep-mouthed cannon and the glittering bayonet, and remembers the purpose for which they are made, and then remembers the words of Jesus: "But I say unto you that ye resist not evil; but if a man smite thee on one cheek, turn to him the other also." When in his morning devotion he prays "deliver us from evil," how his faith must falter when he remembers that he has voluntarily put himself in the way of evil. When he prays "Thy kingdom come," he sees very much more evidence of the reign of Satan than of God. When he prays "This will be done on earth, even as it is done in heaven," he sees much more evidence around him that the will of Satan is being done on earth than the will of the Lord. When he prays "forgive us our trespasss, even as we forgive those who trespass against us," he knows that he is asking God to take vengeance on him and those with whom he is associated, for that is what he and they are trying to do to those whom they call their enemies. When an engagement is pending, and he prays the Lord to direct their missiles to the hearts and heads of their enemies, he knows that he is praying to a God who has said "thou shalt not kill," and in the name of a Saviour who has said, "love your enemies." If he prays, "Lord, be merciful to those with whom I am associated, but help us to inflict swift and speedy vengeance on those who are arrayed against us," and then remembers that Jesus has taught, "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy," and remembers also that the Bible, a copy of which is in his hand, or in his pocket, teaches that "God hath made of one blood all the nations of the earth," it may awaken doubts in his mind whether God will hear and answer his prayer against his brothers, or not. And then possibly the Holy Spirit may bring to his recollection the truth that "whatsoever is not of faith, is sin." If the army with which he is associated should send out a foraging party, and he should be called upon to pray for their success, and then remember that the God to whom he is praying has said, "Thou shalt not steal," and "Thou shalt not covet anything that is thy neighbor's," it places him in an exceedingly embarrassing position. If his military commander sends out a squad of men to cut off the enemy's supply of food and water, and he is called upon to pray for their success, how can he do so in the face of God's positive command, "If thy enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink." Poor man; how pitiable is his lot.

If a soldier has conscientious convictions about obeying the orders of his officers which require him to kill and rob his fellow-men for whom Christ died, and comes to the chaplain for advice as to what he must do under the circumstances, the chaplain dare not read from the Bible the advice which John the Baptist gave the soldiers who came to him: "Do violence to no man," for that would be teaching them insubordination to their military officers, and render them perfectly worthless as soldiers.

If he is called upon to administer spiritual comfort to sick, or wounded, or dying soldier, although the soldier at the time of his enlistment and subsequently may have been taught to believe that to die for his country was a sure passport to heaven, the chaplain is not of works, but is God's free gift to man through repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ.

Take it altogether, we think if there is any one in heathen or Christian countries who needs the sympathy and prayers of God's children, it is the war chaplain. He is professing allegiance to two authorities so wide apart in their spirit and methods, that he cannot possibly obey one without disobeying the other. He is trying to serve two masters, and what pleases one displeases the other. The Lord grant that his eyes may be opened to see the truth as it is in Jesus.

Messenger of Peace.

What is Unction?

Dr. Cookman states it: "What is unction? - Is it pathos, or eloquence, or psychological power, or mental force? I apprehend it is not these, though it may consist in part of one or all of them. Unction is that subtle, mysterious, unaccountable, irresistible influence that proceeds from the Spirit to the individual filled with the Spirit—that seals instruction upon the heart and conscience of the person receiving it; so that the unction tends to render a man powerful and glorious in his life and history. That is unction. That which sounds pleasant may not be unction; but that which, however feebly expressed, makes an impression on your memory, and develops, until at length it is a part of your existence, and becomes a great power,—this is unction. Look give us more of that kind!"

Habits are to the soul what the veins and arteries are to the blood—the courses in which it moves.

United States and Canada.

BY HON. JOHN SHERMAN.

Shall each country protect itself from the other by lines of fortifications, dotted by custom houses, carefully watched by smugglers, and expend their resources for armies and vessels of war? Shall we duplicate canals on our borders at every natural obstacle to commerce because we cannot agree for their common use? Shall we, like unfriendly neighbors, build a mad-lane between us, because we cannot agree to join our fences? One or the other of these lines of public policy will very soon have to be adopted, or, like the ancient English and Scotch, we will be in a state of continual controversy or warfare with each other. I prefer a kind and generous policy to Canada rather than one of retaliation and force. Nor will mere commercial arrangements, in their nature temporary, like the reciprocity treaty of 1854 and of 1871, liable to be set aside by the shifting exigencies of the political situation meet or solve the problem we have before us. They only tend to emphasize our separation.

The way to union with Canada is not by hostile legislation, not by acts of retaliation, but by friendly overtures. This union is one of the events that must inevitably come in the future; it will come by the logic of the situation, and no politician or combination of politicians can prevent it. The true policy of this government is to tender freedom in trade and intercourse, and to make this tender in such a fraternal way that it shall be an overture to the Canadian people to become a part of this Republic.

Any force used will defeat the object we have in view. It can only be approached by gradual measures that invite and tend to good will and intercourse. It can not be promoted by controversy or retaliation. These measures tend to others, and end in war. There are restless spirits in every generation that seek to rise by the misfortunes of their country. There are narrow politicians that seek by tricks and popular appeals to gain an advantage; but in the end they fall by their own devices.

Unspoken Words.

"It is impossible but that offenses will come." Every day brings its provocations, its perplexities, its misunderstandings. Irritations arise; frictions make their appearance; hurts are received. How hard it is amid all these conditions to guard one's tongue and leave unspoken what is best covered by silence!

A mosquito bite may, if properly cultivated, develop into an ulcer. Keep the skin thoroughly abraded, sprinkle on a little acid, touch it with minute particles of poison, and one may have a canker or a gangrene. The body will soon discharge its impurities partially into that sunken place and help convert it into an open sewer. But let a mosquito bite alone, or apply a little sweet-oil and ammonia, and it soon disappears, leaving no trace.

A little wound in the spirit may be cultivated until the whole nature is infected. "A soft answer turneth away wrath." "Gentle speech prevents untold trouble." "A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver."

The Two.

There were once in Rome two blind men, one of whom cried in the streets of the city, "He is helped whom God helps," the other, on the contrary, cried, "He is helped whom the emperor helps." This they did every day, and the emperor heard it so often that he had a loaf of bread baked filled with golden pieces.

This gold-filled loaf he sent to the blind man who appealed to the emperor's help. When he felt the heavy weight of the bread he sold it to the other beggar as soon as he met him. The blind man who bought the bread carried it home. When he had broken it and found the gold he thanked God, and from that day ceased to beg. But the other continued to beg through the city, so the emperor summoned him to his presence and asked him, "What hast thou done with the loaf that I lately sent you?"

"I sold it to my friend because it was heavy and did not seem well risen."

Then the emperor said, "Truly, he whom God helps is helped indeed," and turned the blind man from him.

Mamoud, the Image-Breaker.

The late Archbishop Trench tells in verse a story of the great Mohammedan conqueror of India, Mamoud, the image-breaker. He found an image fifteen feet high, and was about to destroy it, when persons interposed, offering him an enormous ransom if he would but spare this idol. He put their beseechings from him, answering that he would rather be known as the breaker than as the seller of idols. He struck the image with his mace. Others followed his example, till it was broken to pieces. As it broke it poured forth such a wealth of diamonds, rubies and other precious stones as for more than outweighed the ransom he had just refused. So, when our weak heart pleads that this or that which we fear to be wrong should be spared let us remember that we shall, must gain greater riches of peace and joy by putting from us what is evil, or even what is doubtful.

They who apply themselves to Jesus Christ shall be dealt with according to their faith.

THE EIGHMIE
PERFECT FITTING SHIRT.

WE have received a fresh stock of the well known "Eightmie" shirts, which were selling at the old popular prices. These shirts are undoubtedly the very best value for the money. They are made of the finest material in fit. To those who have worn them a simple announcement of the fact that they can get even better than those of Northern manufacturers, and that my work will compare favorably with that of any other maker.
